SCHOLARSHIP SELECTION AND ELIGIBILITY GUIDELINES

- Scholarship selection is very competitive. Admission to a course does not guarantee the award of a scholarship.
- Selection is based on academic merit and, for graduate research scholarships, demonstrated research potential. This usually means a high first-class honours/first division with distinction or equivalent in the most recently completed qualification. Publications in international refereed journals are also taken into account.
- International Scholarships are available to students from any overseas country (excluding citizens and permanent residents of Australia and citizens of New Zealand).
- English language requirements must be met and documentation submitted by the closing date for consideration in the main rounds. Applicants will only be considered when an unconditional offer for admission has been made.
- Most scholarships are accessible across all faculties.
- Students already in receipt of a scholarship that covers tuition fees and/or a living allowance are ineligible for the same type of scholarship.
- Students who have already completed a degree (PhD or Masters) at an equivalent or higher level to the course for which they are seeking a scholarship are not eligible for consideration.

All enquiries regarding AusAID scholarships should be directed to the Australian Diplomatic Mission in your home country.
